

BALTIC FLOWS

Towards Stormwater Management in Baltic Cities

Brussels, April 21, 2015 – Press Release

For Immediate Release:

The Project BalticFlows just hosted the workshop, Towards Stormwater Management in Baltic Cities last April 21, 2015 as part of the release of the Joint Action Plan for citizen engagement, livable safe cities, and competitive-inclusive regions in the Baltic Sea and throughout the European Union.

The workshop activities were meant to highlight the current state of affairs of urban stormwater management in Baltic Cities with a special focus on challenges; constrains; methods; and solutions that can shed light in the future development of a stormwater strategy for cities on the Baltic Region.

The event was a great opportunity to bring together stakeholders from R&D; public officials; SMEs; EU EIP Water Action Groups; and others in the field, to exchange knowledge, introduce their capacities and competitiveness, and to generate ideas and solutions as future steps in the development of a sustainable stormwater infrastructure programme for urban areas.

To learn more about our past and future events, please click here